And to every Kindervelt member I want to give a heartfelt “thank you” for all that you have given in time, talent and treasure this year. Each Kindervelt member is a special person. You are truly appreciated by Cincinnati Children’s as well as the children and families whose lives you impact.

I am looking forward to seeing many of you as we celebrate the conclusion of another great year of wonderful work for CCHMC on May 20th.

Pitter Patter of Little Hearts . . .

News From the Heart Institute

My son, Jordan (pictured top left), is a typical teenager: he has a messy room, forges to take out the trash and acts silly. But he is also very loving, honest, and extremely athletic. At four, Jordan started playing basketball and quickly added baseball, soccer, boxing, track and volleyball to his sports portfolio.

Knowing that Jordan aspired to play college sports, I still get teary-eyed thinking about how I almost skipped a free screening for sudden cardiac arrest. I wasn’t feeling well that morning and planned to leave work early to get an oil change and take a nap, rather than take him to the screening. I called Jordan from the auto shop to tell him we weren’t going because he was perfectly healthy and didn’t really need the test. I’m not sure what possessed me, but deciding to call Jordan back to tell him that I had changed my mind was the best decision of my life.

After Jordan participated in the research study, we were called back to an exam room. I figured they were going to have me sign some paperwork, and we would be on our way home. Never did I imagine how our lives would change after we stepped into that examination room. Numbness best describes what I felt when we were told that Jordan had a potentially fatal heart defect. His condition was only identifiable from the echocardiogram he just received, since he had no symptoms or warning signs. Jordan insisted he felt fine and never had chest pain or shortness of breath. His response prompted me to ask if they had called the right patient into the room.

I couldn’t even speak as they described Jordan’s diagnosis. Because the defect in his heart was so severe, he was told to stop all sports as of that moment and schedule a cardiologist appointment as soon as possible. It was a long ride home as I talked to my husband about what just happened. Jordan continued to reiterate to both of us how he felt fine and believed nothing was really wrong, but would consider giving up one of his six sports, if he had to.

Further testing from the cardiologist proved bitter sweet. The results verified the initial screening saved Jordan’s life by catching the defect in time. However, it was recommended that Jordan stop playing all sports because the risk of sudden cardiac arrest was too high. The doctors explained that with every burst of physical activity – like sprinting out of the race blocks – his heart rate increased, causing an increased blood flow through his aortic root valve. While this is normal during physical activity, Jordan’s aortic valve was not adjusting properly. Instead, every time Jordan’s heart rate heightened and the blood flow increased, his valve continued to expand beyond its normal level. Jordan’s valve is now dangerously thin and continued physical activity would have resulted in sudden cardiac arrest from the valve erupting. As the doctors explained the implications, Jordan understood why he needed to stop playing sports but he could not fight back the tears. He had to give up all six sports, not just one like he had hoped.

However, it was recommended that Jordan stop playing all sports because the risk of sudden cardiac arrest was too high. The doctors explained that with every burst of physical activity – like sprinting out of the race blocks – his heart rate increased, causing an increased blood flow through his aortic root valve. While this is normal during physical activity, Jordan’s aortic valve was not adjusting properly. Instead, every time Jordan’s heart rate heightened and the blood flow increased, his valve continued to expand beyond its normal level. As the doctors explained the implications, Jordan understood why he needed to stop playing sports but he could not fight back the tears. He had to give up all six sports, not just one like he had hoped.
The following days were tough. I made calls to all of Jordan’s coaches to explain why he could no longer participate in any sports. Every phone call started with my sudden disbelief and shock. While cheering for Jordan from the sidelines, I had never once worried that he could die of sudden cardiac arrest.

While my realization of his diagnosis was hard to hide at times, Jordan became my rock. I was heartbroken by his shattered dreams of playing baseball for Louisiana State University and the other things he could no longer do. Jordan was determined to put his athletic talent to use in other ways. He decided his college major should be sports medicine, that way he’ll “be back on the field as an athletic director.” His first job at the Cincinnati Reds Stadium brought excitement back to his voice. At the age of 15, Jordan was the inspiration our entire family needed to handle a situation that affected his life the most.

Although life has been different since the screening, I consider myself extremely fortunate that I had the choice to cease all of Jordan’s sports activities. Certainly having no games or practices on our schedule has been an adjustment but seeing Jordan walk down the stairs every morning makes it all worth it. The support Jordan used to receive from the stands has now moved to off-the-field support. My dad reassures Jordan that no matter what he does, even if it’s playing tiddlywinks, he’ll be there for him. I’ve noticed that even the hugs are different – our family hugs him a little bit tighter and a little bit longer now.

I still cry sometimes when I look at Jordan, thinking about how he had been a “ticking time bomb” – he could have been here one second and gone the next. The thought of not hearing “hello mutter” (mother in German) or “what’s up momma,” is too much to bear. That screening changed my life; it caught his potentially life-threatening heart defect early and allowed me to be in the position to stop all of his sports activities. No matter how devastating, having that option was far better than the alternative.

Member Highlight

Tammy Eby Booth, member of KV 55, Triple Crown, is our focus for May. Tammy comes from Elkhart, Indiana, which is just outside of Notre Dame territory. She graduated from Jimtown High School and then went to Indiana University, where she obtained a degree in Home Economics and Interior Design. She met her future husband, Tom at a fraternity-sorority event and they were college sweethearts. After graduation, careers took them to Pittsburg, Pa where they started their married life and then on to Atlanta with job opportunities. She and Tom settled in Triple Crown when his position at Fifth Third Bank brought them to the area.

Kindervelt is the perfect outlet for Tammy’s creativity; and our organization has benefited many times during these years. In 1999, she joined a new group starting at Triple Crown and surrounding areas when an article was published in the Community newsletter. Tammy jumped right in and took on the position of Treasurer, and then Group #55 President for several terms. She was Markt (Markt) Rep, chair of their group’s very successful Golf Outing and Wine Tasting events. She has also worked on many of their other fundraisers. Tammy joined the City Board as a relatively new member but quickly found her niche starting as Area Liaison, then City Treasurer, Financial Advisor, Membership Chair, and then on to Vice President, and Corresponding Secretary. On the Market Steering Committee Tammy held the Inventory Control Chair position and then the position of Markt Bakery Chair and enjoyed having her Mother, Sue Hammel help out during Markt week.

It is with reluctance that we say goodbye to Tammy. Her husband Tom is being relocated back to Atlanta and they are in the process of managing two homes and commuting lifestyles. They will be back and forth from Triple Crown to Atlanta and she plans on staying involved with KV...just at a reduced pace. Tammy has always felt that she has been truly gifted and lives by this mantra..."To whom much has been given, much is expected". Tammy, you have given much to Kindervelt but we expect to see you often. All our best as you continue on a new life’s journey...playing golf, reading, crafting, and travelling all while making life a joy for those around you...both in Atlanta and here in Greater Cincinnati. Your Kindervelt family thanks you for all your past and future endeavors.

Important Market Dates! Many more details and information to come....

May Steering Committee Meeting - May 14th, Dewey’s Pizza 6:30
June Steering Committee Meeting - June 16th at Sue Crosby’s home 6:30
Market Rep meeting, Sept 2nd, Cooper Creek Event Center, 9:00am- 11:00
Gala, Cooper Creek Event Center, Nov. 13th 6:30
It's that time... time for all group Presidents to write a simple summary to be included in the Kindervelt Annual Report! The Annual Report will then be distributed at the September President's Council Meeting.

Be sure to include your KV NAME & NUMBER, YEAR ESTABLISHED, NUMBER OF MEMBERS, MEETING DAY and MEETING TIME. Then summarize your GROUP'S YEAR - including all projects, any citywide events participated in, plus fun activities that were not necessarily fundraisers. Remember, you are highlighting the 2014-2015 fiscal year! (For reference, each group received a copy of their previous year's summary at last month's PC meeting.) Please do not include any financial totals however, as they will be submitted through your group Treasurer.

Your report is due no later than May 31, 2015. Please email it to kvcsecretary@kindervelt.org and feel free to contact me if you have questions. I want to thank you in advance for your cooperation and commend each group for the multitude of accomplishments this past year!!
It is with great pleasure that the Kindervelt Nominating Committee submits to the membership the following slate of candidates for the Kindervelt Board of Trustees and the Citywide Nominating Committee for the year 2015-2016. The election of these candidates will take place at the Annual Dinner Meeting on May 20, 2015.

My heartfelt thanks go to the 2014-2015 Nominating Committee for your hard work and dedication assembling this wonderful slate.

Terri Mitsch
